Beginnings (Same Face Different Place Book 1) Helen J. Christmas

16 year old Eleanor had no idea her father was involved in organised crime. But then came the turf war - the threat of a deadly rival - and the promise of revenge which would eventually force Oliver into hiding.

Left to the mercy of dangerous people, Eleanor knows her life is spiralling out of control. But on the night she plans her escape, she stumbles across a mysterious prisoner. His name is Jake, he is a rock musician from Holland - and he has a contract on his life.

A daring escape across London eventually draws them into a place of hiding - before Jake's own chilling story gradually begins to unfold. He is the one vital witness to a sinister scene leading up to the death of a British MP and now those responsible want him silenced. As two people, thrown together by fate they develop intense feelings of love for each other - and it does not take long for Eleanor to realise, that she will do anything possible to keep Jake alive.

Beginnings is a powerful love story, set in the dark criminal underworld of London, of two people whose powerful love bond will keep you turning the pages, as they live on a knife edge, desperate to escape the deadly enemies who stalk them.
