Excerpt from the Book:

“It cannot be stressed enough how much the Poodle enjoys being near people. This is not a dog to share your life with if you aren’t willing to actually share your life. While the Poodle is still a dog, that doesn’t mean that your Poodle will know that. A Poodle wants to accompany you as much as you will allow. This breed was bred for centuries to be near its owner and will not be satisfied unless this need is met. The Poodle is absolutely not a backyard dog and is as close to a human as you can get in a dog. This is a breed that will wish to interact with you on a level; if you’ve had a dog of a different breed before, you have probably never experienced this level of devotion.”
