The Dzarylgac Survey Project (BLACK SEA STUDIES)

The Dzarylgac Survey Project (BLACK SEA STUDIES)

This book is a publication of the Danish-Dutch-Ukrainian survey project carried out between 2006 and 2008. The project introduced the systematic, intensive survey to the region. It took place at both sides of Lake Darylga - that is the hinterland of the ancient Greek settlement of Panskoe I in the Tarchankut Peninsula (Western Crimea). The survey aimed at investigating the landscape from prehistory until early modern times. We could conclude that the region was most intensively settled in the Late Classical and Early Hellenistic period. The results were spectacular: a large number of undisturbed Greek and 'barbarian' sites were located, which have completely changed our understanding of ancient settlement patterns in the region.
